GREEK PREMIER
LEAVES MEETING

Orlando Replies; Objects To Presence of Venizelos.

(By International News.)

Paris, May 22.—It has been learned in trustworthy quarters that the United States, Great Britain and France have united in sending a note to Italy requesting an explanation of the landing of Italian forces in Turkey.

Premier Orlando is said to have made a reply to the Council of Four after a sharp personal incident during which he objected to the presence of Premier Venizelos of Greece. The latter retired from the meeting.

The Italians landed forces at Adalia, Budrum and Mukri during the winter when Premier Orlando had withdrawn. Minister Sarrail had withdrawn from the peace conference, making the landings without notice to the allies.

The nature of the Italy reply and whether it was acceptable to the senders of the note, was not known this morning.

Turkish Problem Complicated.
The reported Italian incident apparently complicates the Turkish problem.

In evident anticipation of a Greek mandate to administer the Smyrna district, allied forces were landed at Smyrna last Thursday, meeting with considerable resistance from the Turks. Italian troops were reported to have participated. According to a Paris dispatch of May 20, however, the Italians had previously landed forces at Alat on the southern coast of Asia Minor, and likewise disembarked troops at Budrum, 96 miles southeast of Smyrna, and at Makri, on the Gulf of Mukri, in the Vilayet of Smyrna.

There has been nothing to indicate that these landings were not by agreement among the allies, and indeed some unofficial forecasts as to the probable division of Turkish territory under the nation mandarins had indicated the probability that Italy would be given the Adalia district to administer.

PRUSSIAN TROOPS
READY TO BATTLE
FOR FATHERLAND

(By Associated Press.)

London, May 22.—Full realization of the peace terms has restored some national feeling in Germany, and there is almost unanimous opinion against the treaty, according to the correspondent of the Daily Mail.

Germany is slowly finding men around whom she will rally, the correspondent adds. Upper Silesia will fight, he says, and may soon be the storm center of the attempted peace settlement. The correspondent adds that upper Silesia is determined to remain Prussian and that 1,500,000 persons have signed a solemn pledge that the mining and foundry industries of the region will be handed over to Poland only in ruins and the price "taken in blood." Upper Silesia today he says, has 120,000 Prussian troops under arms.

"It was just that long, steady tramp of steel-welded Prussian infantry companies, interwoven with field guns and machine guns, also companies of miners with pennons flying us in the colors of the empire," he says. "Scores of children rode with the drivers on the horses and the troops' horses and guns were festooned with flowers. These were the men who a few weeks ago refused to obey their officers and waved the red flag. They now are ready again to take up the battle of the fatherland."

RIVER FILLING CASE
IS OPENED TODAY

Testimony in the case of the Beloit Water Power Company against Edward Branigan and others who are charged with violation of an injunction issued several years ago to prevent filling along the river bank with earth or rubbish, was begun in circuit court before Judge Grimm, this afternoon. M. O. Mount and A. Oestreich appeared for the plaintiff and T. D. Woolsey for Branigan.

The company contends that any person who deposited any material in the river to the property of the owners violates an injunction which prohibits the water company against such trespass. Mr. Branigan and others associated with him will fight the case to the last ditch.

SUFFRAGE GAINS IN SENATE

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, May 22.—The woman suffrage constitutional amendment resolution which was passed yesterday by the house, gained another vote in the senate with the announcement today by Senator Hale, republican of Maine that he would support it. Senator Hale voted against the resolution at the last session.

Suffragists previously had claimed sufficient votes to ensure adoption of the resolution in the senate.

Adoption of the suffrage resolution in the senate with not less than six votes to spare was predicted today by Senator Jones of New Mexico. The senator estimated that the vote would be about 66 for and 30 against the resolution.

"There can be no doubt but that the resolution will be passed as soon as it can be brought to a vote in the senate," the senator said.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, May 22.—High winds again prevented the naval seaplane C-4 from leaving Ponta Delgada for Lisbon on the second leg of her trans-Atlantic flight. The navy department this morning received the following message from Admiral Jackson at Ponta Delgada:

"N. C-4 will not leave today. Seas too rough for start."

The weather forecast for the Azores

disrupted the plan to the navy department today held out promise that conditions might be favorable tomorrow for continuation of the flight as the blow from the southwest was moving northward.

The department also received today a cable message in Lisbon that had taken a third day in transmission. It said nothing had been heard of the N. C-4. This incident was promptly called to the attention of Rear Admiral Plunkett at Lisbon and he was urged to make every effort to get communication arrangements at that point on a satisfactory basis in order to insure prompt transmission of the official reports when the N. C-4 arrives at Lisbon.

WOMEN WANT A CHANCE

Zurich, May 22.—That men have made a great mess of things and should therefore be willing to give women a voice in public affairs, is the keynote running through the addresses that have been delivered at the International Woman's conference, now in session at Zurich.

One of the most interesting features of the conference is the fraternizing between the delegates from allied nations and from Germany and Austria.

Most prominent among the American delegates are Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, and Jeannette Rankin, ex-congresswoman from Montana.

A resolution condemning the peace terms is being considered by the conference. It was introduced by Mrs. Ethel Snowden, noted English suffragist.

The most prominent delegates here from a neutral nation is Dr. Aletta Jacobs of Holland.

Coblenz, Wednesday, May 21.—Lieut. General Hunter Leggett, commander of the army of occupation, and Major Gen. Hines, commander of the third corps who were on their way to London today, were recalled to Coblenz by orders from American general headquarters.

The former Austrian royal pair were kissed as they alighted from an ordinary train and took a carriage to the Chateau de Coblenz, their future home. Millet was once the residence of General Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte. The ex-emperor appeared ill and depressed, while the ex-empress wore a gay air and was attired in a gown of the latest Parisian model. Swiss gendarmes will temporarily guard the chateau.

PEACE —and— WAR

Great Britain, France and the United States are reported from Paris to have sent a joint note to Italy, asking for an explanation of the landing of Italian forces in Turkey. Premier Orlando answered the note, and it is reported there was a personal clash between him and Premier Venizelos of Greece, which resulted in the latter withdrawing from the meeting of the council.

The difficulty apparently is over the landing of independent Italian forces in London, in which Generals Liggett and Hines were also to take part, is being held in Coblenz because of the new turn in the situation. The general may be sent to London and Britain as intended if the peace treaty is signed within the next few weeks.

The movement of the motor trucks continued throughout Wednesday and most of Wednesday night, and was the topic of conversation among the Germans in Coblenz. Many civilians complained that the trucks, as they ran, rattled across the Rhine bridges at night, disturbed the sleepers.

Refusal Is Expected

Berlin, Wednesday, May 21.—The German cabinet's declaration, issued officially and exclusively through the Associated Press Tuesday, that Germany would decline to sign the peace terms, reflects the underlying note to the official reply to be made to the allies and associated powers. In fact the statement as a whole virtually represents the composite of the document which Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the head of the German delegation, is expected to deliver before the end of the week.

The conclusion of peace between the allied and associated governments and Germany has been removed further into the future by the action of the conference yesterday, extending until May 22, the day for the Germans to submit their answers. According to estimates of Paris there was some expectation that the pact might be signed about June 15, but it now appears that the date of the signature of the document will be a week or more later.

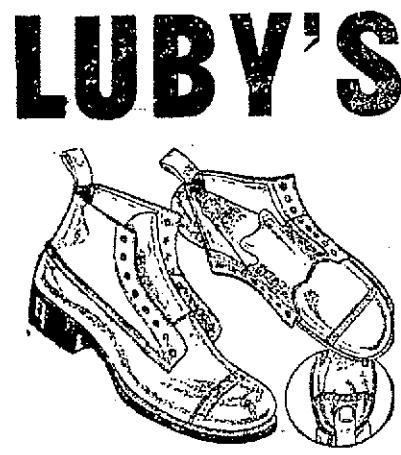

Apparently the Germans contemplated submitting voluminous replies to some of the terms. Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German delegation, had asked for permission to bring a printing press from Germany to Versailles, with printers to print the objections that will be made by the enemy government.

It appears the treaty between the allies and Austria may not be presented as soon as expected. Italy is reported not to be satisfied with the boundaries fixed between Italy and Yugoslavia, and this matter must be decided before the terms are laid down. There is no indication as yet that the deadlock over the Fiume question has been broken by any definite agreement as to the disposition of the city.

The document will be complemented by specific proposals and counter-proposals, which will bring to a head the negotiations. The reply will be made to the allied and associated powers. Washington, May 22.—Subjects dealing with party organization were discussed at a republican conference today under the auspices of the Republican Women's National Executive Committee. Will A. Reports on organization work preparatory to the next campaign were heard from representatives from three groups of states. Mrs. Florence Porter of California speaking for the states in which women have complete franchise; Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter of Kansas for the partially enfranchised states, and Miss Maude Wetmore, of Rhode Island for the unfranchised group.

"There is but one possible rule for a political party," said Chairman Hays, "and that is that the rights of the individual members of the party's different wings must remain equally honored and sacredly equal. The republican woman come into this party actively not as women but as voters, entitled to participate, and participating insofar as the present legal limitations permit, just as other voters. They are not to be separated or segregated at all, but assimilated and amalgamated, with just that full consideration due every working member of the party in the rights of their full citizenship."

The arguments were not concluded when the jury reappeared today and they scheduled themselves in the jury room, while the lawyers continued their reading of court decisions and commented thereon.

Elliott G. Stevenson of counsel for the Tribune took up his theme designed to permit a broad discussion of military preparedness where he was interrupted by adjournment. He was followed by Alfred Murphy for the plaintiff, who desires to restrict the evidence closely to a direct bearing on the alleged libel in editions of June 28, 1916, which was headed "Ford is an Anarchist".

A TRUE MAN.

The Gazette is in receipt of an issue
of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, in which a tribute is paid to Brother Dutton, a man who has devoted such unselfish energy in comforting lepers.
We are reproducing the review of Brother Dutton's activities:

"Brother Dutton, the hero of Molokai,
the friend, companion and comforter of the lepers of Kalawao, is indeed a man among men."

"The legends of old sing the praises
of mythical heroes. Biblical-anecdotes
of the era of the Old Testament hold up saintly personages as examples of self-sacrifice and noble lives, but it is doubtful if modern history records
more inspiring, more chivalrous, more
altruistic example than the living
present at Molokai."

"Brother Dutton's refusal to accept
a pension from the territory in recognition of his work emphasizes the nobility of the man, the goodness, the wonderful
humility of the man."

"Especially so when outside of his prison confines the sordid world is scheming and battling for gold, conserving, blaspheming and sacrificing
honor and principle for personal aggrandizement and material advancement."

"If there were more men of Brother Dutton's type the lust for power and lucre might be stifled; the sufferings of the poor and unfortunate
might be recognized and appreciated;
humanity would be lifted to that
place which the Utopian Brotherhood
of Man seeks to attain. Honesty would prevail in public office and corruption
be as shunned as the dread disease
that Brother Dutton comes in daily
contact with."

"When, right in our very midst we see the daily struggle going on among men for supremacy; when we see our
fellows trampling scruples in the dust
to down their fellow beings; when we
see the raids on our public treasury;
when we see public servants wasting
and handing profligate taxpayers
money—Brother Dutton's example of distrust for the fleshpots of earth is indeed refreshing."

"Men would do well to pause and
give thought to the life of sacrifice, of self-abnegation, of isolation led by the man of Molokai."

"For 33 years he has mingled with the lepers. An associate of Father Damion he has imbued from him the principles of heroic fortitude, of disgust for worldly foibles and the feeling pleasure of life. His ideal is to serve his Master and fellow men.
Fortune and honor, position and pleasure might have been his if he had so chosen; but he turned from
them to espouse a higher cause, to bury himself away from civilization
to serve God and humanity."

"Eight thousand dollars has he given to help the lepers. But he still buys Liberty bonds and war savings
stamps."

"In 33 years he has never set foot
off Molokai; in 26 years he has never left Kalawao even to visit the main settlement of Kalawao. His whole life is wrapped up in his protégés."

"This is where I shall rest finally,"
he said recently to the writer, as he pointed out a spot in the little cemetery
adjoining the church at Kalawao.
The plot is but a few feet from Father Damion's grave."

CAUSE FOR WORRY?

"The Tobacco Crusade" is the title
of a recent editorial in the Washington Post, which is as follows:

"Tobacco is next on the prohibited
list. Absolutely! For some months
the Anti-Tobacco League has been organizing throughout the country
after the plan of the Anti-Saloon League, with the frantic announced
intention of securing by constitutional amendment the prohibition of the production, sale and use of tobacco
in this country. Just a few days ago
application was made to the court in Pittsburgh for a charter for the 'No-Tobacco Corporation,' the purpose of which is thus set forth: 'To educate
the public, especially the children, before
they have formed the tobacco habit,
to a knowledge of the evils of
the use of tobacco and for the purpose of securing by law the prohibition of the culture, sale or use of tobacco.'

"So this is the next reform to be undertaken following closely upon the heels of alcoholic prohibition. Why not? Why shouldn't the country be saved from the siren siren as well as from the demon rum? We know that tobacco is a narcotic; the books
say so. We know that it is a curse wished upon us by the American Indian
through the medium of Sir Walter Raleigh. We see all about us the evidences of its hateful effects."

"Uncle Joe" Carson might hope to live to a ripe old age if he had
eschewed tobacco in his younger days,
and the same could be said of Chauncy
Dopey. Gaze upon the shrunken, emaciated form of Boles Penrose. It is no secret that it was tobacco that stunted his growth, and any one who has smoked one of his favorite brand
of cigars will not wonder at it. If the late J. Pierpont Morgan had cut out $1.25 cigars he might have laid out something for a rainy day. By the same token, Caruso might have learned
to sing if he had not been addicted to cigarettes."

"On every hand are the evidences
of this curse which the reformers propose to remove. There is not the slightest doubt that it was tobacco
which made the American army so ineffective in this war. It is also common gossip that tobacco is responsible for warping the mentality of
such men as Elmo Root, Henry Cabot

Shop in the Gazette before you shop

Lodge, Philander C. Knox, Knute
Nelson, John Sharp Williams and A.
Mitchell Palmer and that cigarettes
retired Bob Lansing and Newt Baker.
"By all means, let it be cut out; but why make two bites of a cherry? Why not do the job thoroughly while we are at it and place chewing gum, ice
cream, celluloid collars, gauzy shirt-
waists and hose, moving pictures,
snuff, luxury taxes and a lot more things on the prescribed list all at once and prohibit them en bloc, thereby
saving time and trouble?"

"And yet, after all, it were better to take them one at a time, since a general clean-up would leave the professional reformers out of jobs, and the labor market is already overstocked."

A great deal is heard these days
about Americanism. Many would hold it up as something mysterious—
something difficult to understand and more difficult to assimilate. Americanism stands for ideals which we of this nation love and will protect with
our last drop of blood; we have shown
that in the last two years as well as
on previous occasions. Americans have shown that they are interested in the other fellow's troubles and will
unselfishly aid him if given the chance. Hence, the more to Ameri-canize the foreigner should be based upon making him see the appreciation, and love we have for American ideals and so inspire him to recognize
them and in turn accept and fight for them.

Wells who saw in the president's message a gleam of hope for beer and
light wines as beverages after July 1,
became down-hearted when news
from Washington indicated that the repeal of the emergency prohibition
measure was not going to be accomplished without a spirited fight. Dry
leaders are confident that congress
will not have the courage to pass a repeal measure and introduction of an enforcement measure already is being prepared for presentation. The victory of the suffragists in the lower house did not add much to the wet's
short-lived exuberance.

When Uncle Sam sends his monthly collector out for April accounts he should bring back a goodly supply of the world's money. Reports from the department of commerce show that exports for that period surpassed the previous high record by nearly one hundred million dollars. The total for April was $715,000,000 as compared with $423,000,000 in January,
a former record month.

Administration officials are of the opinion that the Germans' refusal to sign the peace treaty is a bluff. It is predicted that the pact will be accepted finally by a dummy government
set up for the purpose of saving the face of the present German government. Any way the Germans wish to arrange the method of acceptance is satisfactory, just as so it is.

The suffragists are elated at the alacrity with which the lower house
of congress passed the suffrage amendment. There is little doubt but that the senta will give immediate attention to the matter and the recognition which the women of this nation have fought for so many years
will be given with a substantial endorsement.

One of the decisive ways in which
returned soldiers can overthrow "the autocrats of Uncle Sam's army" is with the ballot. Organizations that will turn out those who have been responsible for such autocracy will gain
a victory for themselves as well as
for those who believe in a square deal
for all.

When 5,000,000 Americans who rent
houses form a tenants' union the landlords who have profiteered and
have been arbitrary in their regulations
will perhaps become more docile in disposition.

I do not sound the praises that
Loom big around my new straw hat,
But chant with glee the poignant woe
That flutters free from winds that

The other day I bought a lid,
Twas made of straw, a nobby lid.
I placed it on my head, I did,
And when 'twas there a little while
The unkind wind,
Which whined behind,
Toed wild
Me lid,
It did.

I purchased me another lid,
And wore it only for to kid
The unkind wind,
Which whined behind,
For, neath the lid
A string was hid,
And when the breeze at last found
out
It couldn't blow me lid about
It got quite blew.
Indeed it did.

One-legged Sympathy
May Lead to Wedding

Topeka, Kan., May 22.—A one-legged
girl Chicago girl would correspond with Robert D. McGiffert, city park commissioner, with a view to "making a match". McGiffert, who has a wooden leg with barometrical qual-

lost his leg in battle in France.

The Chicago girl, who says she lost
her leg in 1916, wrote him, enclosing a clipping and expressed her sympathy
with him and wants to correspond
with him.

"I'm going to write and ask her
which leg is missing," said the commissioner. "If it is her left we might walk together very nicely. But if it is her right, our limps would interfere
with our strolls."

Local marksmen will leave on the 8 o'clock interurban Sunday morning, getting off at Town Line bridge, where the range is located.

The first shoot held last Sunday was well attended by both Beloit and Janesville club members. New targets have been installed and the pit has been put in first-class condition.

SAMSON ADVERTISING HEAD SPEAKS MONDAY

Progressive advertising will be discussed by C. O. Reed, advertising manager of the Samson Tractor company, at the bi-weekly luncheon of the members council of the Chamber of Commerce, Monday noon.

Mr. Reed has been in charge of the advertising department of the tractor plant for the past month. Previous to that time he was connected with the George Batten advertising agency, Milwaukee and Chicago. Before entering the employ of that concern, he was for several years head of the agricultural engineering department of the University of Illinois.

ELKS MAY BRING CARNIVAL TO CITY

Janesville may have a carnival during the second week in June if plans of the local Elks go through.

Negotiations are now being made with the World's Fair shows to appear in this city during the week, beginning June 9. J. H. Scholten, the Elks, are of the opinion that these shows could not be completed until May 21. T. E. Welsh returned from the east.

There is no reason why a man should be out of work in Janesville," W. H. Levi, head of the employment bureau said this morning, "and if there are men in the city who are seeking work they will be given jobs at once if they call at the employment office."

Mr. Levi stated that the call for carpenters and common laborers was far greater than the bureau could supply.

Local builders have contracted for a large amount of work during the summer months and they are experiencing some trouble owing to the shortage of carpenters," he said.

FARMERS CALL ON SHERIFF FOR HELP

Sheriff Fred Beley said today that the call for help at his office was about normal.

"We are furnishing a large number of men to the farmers," Sheriff Beley said, "and the men are about equal to the number of men we have. Rock county farmers who are in need of help are willing to take a man under the commitment law regardless of whether he has much farming experience or not."

A number of men are put out under the commitment law each month and most of the prisoners are grateful for being given jobs and a chance to work, according to the sheriff.

Green Will Speak in La Crosse, June 11

Details of the banquet are as yet in their embryo but will be announced next week.

COMMERCE CHAMBER MEMBERS IN ANNUAL MEETING, JUNE 4

The second annual meeting of the members of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Wednesday, June 4. This was the date agreed upon by the directors at their regular weekly meeting yesterday afternoon.

Efforts will be made to make it the city's biggest gathering in the city's history. A large banquet will be given, officers for the ensuing year will be elected, and a review of the first year's work of the chamber will be given. A nationally known speaker will be invited to speak.

The Gazette is interested in anything which will improve the boy or girl. It believes that the Boy Scout movement should have greater encouragement and more community support. It has arranged with one of the Scouts, Walter Feltz, to conduct a news column in which will be published all things of interest to the local boys.

Walter Feltz has sent to the Gazette

all the news items he has prepared for this column. —Gazette Editor.

There are several things that Janesville needs, but, taken together, they all go to make up one thing—a bigger and better Boy Scout organization.

They are: Scoutmasters, boys and interested citizens. Each

needs to do away with the

scoutmasters and the boys might

go along, but the organization

would not be the one it is today and citizens

would feel the need of boys trained as Boy Scouts. Take away the boys, and of course, there couldn't be a scout movement. And if the scoutmasters

and boys should lose the scouts, they would lose the boys.

What we should do here in Janesville is to launch a membership campaign for new scouts and scoutmasters.

Each present scout could be given a certain number of new scouts

—about five—and perhaps a sort of

contest could be developed to see who

could get the most new scouts and girls

in the quickest time.

At present there are seven troops in Janesville and a total of about 120 scouts. Sometimes this number would reach the total to 600 scouts!

Then we could do something!

Then we could have a city executive (which we should have now). But let's get together some time and make this a reality instead of a dream. How about it, scouts?

Another thing which should be watched for in the near future is a

"field meet." This, in other words, is a big hike in which all of the scouts

will be in the city take part.

When the hikers reach their destination, tests are passed in the morning and at dinner time. After dinner, games, contests, etc. are the main attractions. Wouldn't that be great,

for dandy for them and for you, too.

Watch these columns for an announcement pertaining to a "new scouts and scout officials' campaign.

And while we speak about scout officials, perhaps some of you fellows may persuade some of the Company

boys to become scoutmasters—that is, if they have leisure time in which to carry out the work. That would be dandy for them and for you, too.

If you have any scout "gossip,"

troop news, or in fact, any scout news

whatever, mail or bring it to me,

Walter W. Feltz, 309 South Main street, so that I may hand the news in all at one time. Put your troop on the map in this way.

"Furs and Frills" Has Plot

The plot of this piece has to do with a Russian noble count of great value which is the subject of many strange adventures, while the story is substantial and may be designated as a real plot. It will be found that every complication furnishes fresh fuel for laughter and that it doesn't tax the mind to follow the logical sequence of events. Mr. Carle, in the role of Mac Tavish, has a role admirably fitted him and many of his admirers have declared that his interpretation of it is the most masterly of his notable comedy career. An able cast and a large beauty chorus leaves nothing to be desired in the way of talent. Seats are now on sale.

EARNING, NOT GETTING.

By the time Annie learned to "get it" and the needle she so feared was obeying hertractably, the back of her neck began to ache. From a dull pain it became sharp torture. Then her back commenced. Then her eyes. Her fingers began to feel numb from the incessant pressure of guiding the seam. Her whole body was wrenched. Unable to endure it, Annie stopped her machine and straightened herself, pressing her hands to her burning eyes.

"Bad, ain't it—at first?" sympathized Yetta, looking up without halting her machine (Yetta had the experience of two seasons' toil). "Once you're used to it, you'll be all right. By next week you won't feel any thing."

Annie felt that she would not be alive by next week, and was too wretched to care.

But she did live until "next week," and for many other weeks. Before five days had passed Annie could sit at her machine from eight in the morning until the noon hour stopped the whir so abruptly the silence hurt the ears, without her eyes or her neck or her back or her fingers having any aches whatever, and again, feeling nothing, from one o'clock till six. At first she thought maybe she was paralyzed. But she had only grown used to her toil. Her bones and muscles had been forced into submission.

For the first week she was paid nothing.

"Beginners don't get no wages," said the foreman, "only we furnish the thread and the machine."

At the end of the second week Annie got $5.00. She had earned $5.45.

Two months later Annie had the thrill of her life when she found ten dollars in her pay envelope for one week's work.

hours and then parboil for 15 minutes. Drain, rinse, and cool. Trim free of tubes and fat. Cut into one and one-half inch pieces and season. Dip in flour and then beaten egg and roll in breadcrumbs. Fry in hot fat. Now make one cup of cream sauce and add one cup of canned pens, two tablespoons of finely chopped onion, one tablespoon of butter, one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of paprika. Heat until hot and then serve.

Soup.—Use fresh string, green beans that were left over from the day before. One and one-half cups beans cut in one-inch lengths, one-half cup celery, two teaspoons onion chopped fine. Mix cooked beans, celery cut in pieces, and onion. Serve with plenty of mayonnaise.

Baked Ham.—Take a very small ham and soak for 24 hours in cold water, then with a knife all the underneath dry part, tie up in a cloth and put in boiling water. Allow about 20 minutes for each pound; then remove the cloth, and trim off the skin carefully with a sharp-pointed knife. Place the ham in another stewpan with about a pint of sweet cider, and let it simmer in this for one and one-half hours either on the stove or in the oven. Then brush it all over with a good clean warm glaze, place it in a baking pan, and put it to crisp in the oven for about 15 minutes. Then take it up, brush over with a little more warm glaze, place a grill on the bone and serve on a dish with polonaise sauce.

DISCOVERIES.—Grass Stains.—Alcohol is a solvent for the green coloring in grass and so will remove grass stains. Apply it a few drops at a time and rub the stain in. Then wash as usual. Keep a small bottle of it in the laundry at this time of the year. Before using on colored goods, try a scrap first to see if it takes the color also.

Wallpaper Border.—An easy way to anyone having to cut out border for wallpaper is to unthread the sewing machine and stitch along where the outline of the border is.

Paper for Shells.—When folding paper shelves, fold two loose leaves together, drawing one out to fill extra space.

Moths.—The odor of printer's ink and cedar is not agreeable to moths. An ordinary trunk lined with clean newspapers under which a number of small pieces of wood from cigar boxes have been laid, makes as safe a storage place for clothing as an expensive cedar chest.

Solvent.—If the vent of the bathroom bowl seems clogged so that the water does not run out freely, and yet a wire does not remove the trouble, put a spoonful of chloride of lime in and leave it for a few hours without using. This will usually eat away whatever obstruction there may be and so leave the way clear for the water.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

OUR FLABBY FORELEGS

With the exception of those of us who are cursed with more or less shameful appendages or attachments which we blushingly call "limbs" we are just highly specialized animals parading about on our hind legs and paying for our evolution in various veins, ptosis, autointoxication, etc., and numerous other peculiarly human afflictions. The great trouble with most of us human beings is that we do not make the best use of our forelegs. Why, great Scott, most of us are so dignified and proud that we can't even touch our forelegs to the ground without kneeling to do it.

Our hind legs are fairly well developed. We have to use 'em more, less to get about where the street cars do not run. We do all we can in the way of destroying their usefulness with cruel and diabolical shoes, yet these hind legs resist the universal effort to slouch them off. This makes us rather proud of our hind legs. We never think of exhibiting them to the public—our fashions are designed with this end, so to speak, in view. The idea is, perhaps, that by dazzling the beholder, in this way the deficiencies of our forelegs and forequarters will escape critical observation. Hence the startling shoes of to-day.

Our transit facilities were ideal, no doubt, our hind legs would soon take to the flabby, scrawny, ungraceful appearance of our forelegs. The whole trunk would partake of the caved-in, flat, vigorless form which now characterizes that part of it connected with the forequarters.

Even a cigarette-smoking sissy can sometimes muster sufficient ambition to take a walk or otherwise exercise the hind legs. It requires comparative little effort to do that. But in order to exercise the forelegs it is necessary to employ a little spirit or enthusiasm and a great deal of perseverance and determination.

A well developed leg is a good thing to look at. But not a bit better than a well developed arm. The beauty of physical development is not regional. We must not permit the camouflage of the fashions to magnify the importance of legs. Arms are quite as important. Nor should we permit the corset makers to confine the significance of "figure" to the abdomen and hips. Unless there are shoulders and chest the good figure can't get by. The camouflage works only in pictures.

Shoulders and a chest are not developed by walking or dancing or standing on a ground or slouching. If you want to have a symmetrical body, and the good health that accompanies good physical training, you have got to use your forelegs as much as you use your hind legs. Watch this column for ideas on the subject.

QUESTION AND ANSWERS

Question.—BETTER THAN EDUCATION

My daughter, aged thirteen, is a great admirer and pupil of yours. She reads every one of your talks, and quotes freely from your teachings in health matters. As a homely girl she acquires good common sense from your writings, and we are happy to see that.

She is a pretty solid, healthy girl, well developed, thanks to some of your suggestions. But there is just one point on which I feel that she has been misinformed—she believes there is absolutely no harm in going out, irrespective of the state of the weather, when she has a slight sore throat or similar trouble. Please do tell that you have ever advocated such a thing, but she thinks you do, and so I am writing

Her husband is among the clerical workers who are near to being crushed between the mother millstone of the high cost of living and the upper millstone of a kind of work in which wages rise slowly if at all.

"I had to go in a hurry," she said.

"It was hard enough getting along before, with everything costing from fifty to hundred per cent more than it used to and Jimmy only earning about twenty-five per cent more, but that seemed like the last straw."

I suppose there are hundreds of readers who will remember some similar last straw in their lives, when a big doctor's bill made such a load upon the year, as maintained for the benefit of the student. Perhaps this is only another of the schemes that do not work out so well in actuality as they sound on paper but one wishes one could see it tried in some community.

To Be Sure Many Doctors Are Wonderful.

True, I know there are many splendid doctors who base their bills on what the patient can afford, not rather than on the size of the service rendered. And, I know in no other profession exists the doctor until absolutely imperative one finds it if there must be some way to make the cost of health less disproportionate.

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO GOD

By
MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
Author of "K." "The Man in Lower Ten," etc.

(Copyright—Mary Roberts Rinehart)
He had set the safe to a simple combination and closed it. Except for its size, and for the protective wiring buried in its walls, it might have been a family safe, built by a nervous and elderly gentleman living in the country to hold his silver spoons.

It was too late by that time to bury the box as Boroday had suggested. Huff did the next best thing. He buried it carefully in Elinor's garden, under a clump of crimson phlox.

Elinor worked hurriedly, but with hopeless eyes. Her preparations consisted in little more than putting on the clothing in which she meant to travel. In this new life on which she was entering she wanted little to remind her of the old. A letter to Henriette contained enough money to pay off the servants and the household accounts. In another envelope she folded the deed to the house and a note conveying it to Henriette.

"You can sell it," she wrote. "Good-bye, dear Henriette. I shall never forget you, and if ever it is possible, be sure I shall see you again."

The time came just before dawn, when she and Walter stood again face to face in the library.

Huff was going at once. It was not Boroday's plan that any of them should further incriminate Elinor by accompanying her to the train. At a sound of steps on the stairs, Huff started.

"The nurse going down, probably for ice," she explained.

"He is getting better, isn't he?"

"Yes, but he still suffers at times."

When the steps had died away, Elinor slowly drew off her engagement ring, and held it out to him across the table. Although he was watching her, he made no move to take it, and she laid it down between them on the table.

"I don't think we need talk about it, Walter," she said simply. "There, is nothing to say, is there?"

"I suppose not," he returned bitterly. He added: "If only you will try not to hate me, Elinor."

"I do not hate you. But if he had died—"

Huff came swiftly around the table and taking both her hands in his, held them to his throat with a despairing gesture.

"If I didn't know that it would make you more unhappy," he said slowly, "I'd kill myself today."

"Walter!"

"I tell you now. It won't change matters any, but perhaps it will change your memory of me. Ever since I've known you I've had one dream. You were to marry me and I was going to turn straight. I could have done it with your help. But now—"

He dropped her hands and turned away. Elinor watched him wistfully. The one thing he wanted she could not give. There could be no compromise between them. It must be all or nothing, and she had given her all to someone else.

In the doorway he turned and looked back at her with haggard eyes. It was as if he were impressing on his memory every light and shadow of her face; every line of her straight young figure. Then he went out into that darkest hour of the night that precedes the dawn.

For the first time since his injury Ward's mind was quite clear. He had not been able to sleep, and the nurse had been reading to him. Strange reading, too, for the assistant rector of Saint Jude's. The books old Hilary had kept on his bedside still lay there.

Even the nurse, accustomed to many books for many men, was gently outraged.

Ward lay in his bed, his eyes half closed, listening intently. At last the

A Simple Way To Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid soap from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

nurse put down the book.

"Why, it's frightful, it's outrageous, it's blasphemous! Do you really think I should read you any more of them?" Ward smiled feebly.

"If you are afraid of the effect on you."

"Not at all," said the nurse almost sharply, and picked up the book again.

Ward lay back on his pillows and listened to the age-old arguments.

So it was on such literature as this that Elinor had been read! How fair a plant to have grown thus in the dark! And as the nurse drowsed on Ward came to realize how natural and how inevitable had been her development. Risen in such soil, what might he himself not have become; and more than that, would he have been one-half so sweet, so tender, so—good?

Toward dawn the nurse slept in her chair. Her cap had fallen a little crooked, and the beautifying hand of sleep had touched away the small furrows between her eyes. Plain she was, but kindly and full of gentleness. Ward, lying awake, watched her. She was no longer very young. He thought of the children who should have clung to her broad, flat bosom and felt the touch of her tender hand.

Then, because, curiously enough, everything of gentleness and tenderness reminded him of Elinor, his thoughts swung round to her. He closed his eyes, and dreamed the dream that had been with him, subconsciously, all the night. To take her in his arms, and by teaching her love, teach her infinite love; by showing mercy and forgiveness and great tenderness, to lead her by this. His attribute, to the Christ—this was his dream.

And because it brought hope and healing and great peace, after a time he slept. Elinor, standing alone in the house outside his door, took courage from his even breathing and ventured in. So light was his sleep that she dared not touch him. She knelt very quietly by the bed, and kissed the corner of his pillow.

Ward spent his Sabbatical year in Oxford. He had thought to find peace by exchanging one form of activity for another, but with the less arduous duties of his work there he had more time to think. He found the old pain even greater; his restlessness grew on him. In the three years since Elinor's flight he had done many things. He had left Wofington for New York, and could feel his usefulness now only bounded by his strength.

He dropped her hands and turned away. Elinor watched him wistfully. The one thing he wanted she could not give. There could be no compromise between them. It must be all or nothing, and she had given her all to someone else.

In the doorway he turned and looked back at her with haggard eyes. It was as if he were impressing on his memory every light and shadow of her face; every line of her straight young figure. Then he went out into that darkest hour of the night that precedes the dawn.

Pat hated the police and never lost an opportunity of letting them know it; his favorite practice being to ride a mule and make foot of it. He entered a Dublin provision shop and purchasing a ham for which he paid 10 shillings, requested the assistant to carry it outside of the door until his return, when he would take it with him. This was agreed to and off he went. Some minutes later he reappeared, an in full view of a policeman, snatched the ham hanging at the door, put it under his coat and made down the street, being quickly followed and captured by the bobby, who brought him back to the shop.

"This fool has found a mare's nest as usual," said Pat when confronted with the assistant.

"I caught him stealing one of your hams, sir," declared the officer.

"Not at all," said the assistant. "That's one of our best customers. He paid for the ham and hung it outside of the door."

Then the crestfallen one tried to

the tune of Pat's guttaws.

Bobby was entertaining the air pilot

who was waiting to see his sister.

"Fancy," said Bobby. "Flying machines are mentioned in the Bible."

"Are they really?" asked the in-

"Well, in his sermon this morning

the vicar said that Esau sold his right to his brother Jacob," replied Bobby.

THE WISHING PLANE

BY WILLIS WINTER

I wonder if you have guessed, white
self me this one, for she is awfully awfully poor, and is afraid she can't give him all he wants. I am going to give her one of my diamond bracelets
from the treasure chest.

"But, sweetheart," said Ladydear to Jane, "don't you know your mother and father want a little brown baby?" I think they would much rather have a little white baby, and it you will wait
until we visit Holland, where the stocks live, we will see about ordering
one for you."

Now Jane hadn't thought about that
part of it, but she saw right away
that Ladydear was right, and decided to wait and do as she said.

Ladydear and Dr. Cheer made the baby's mother awfully happy by giving
her money to get things at the village.

Jane hated to part with the little
brown baby, but finally gave him back to his mother and they all started
back for the village to find Captain Brave and Captain Bold and tell them
that Jane was safe.

Boofus was a very proud dog all the way back to the village. He strutted ahead of Jack, just as big as a little white dog can strut. When they reached the village Boofus held his head
higher than ever, to show the native
dogs what he thought of them. And,
really, I must tell you that the native
dogs treated him with a great deal
more respect all the rest of the time
he remained on the island.

When they got back to the village,
Dr. Cheer told one of the natives to blow a big horn three times, which was the signal to let Captain Brave
and Captain Bold know that Jane had been found.

By this time Captain Brave and the submarine captain returned. Dr. Cheer
had some news for the little folks.
This was that the natives were going
to give a big party for the white visitors.

The party was going to be the next
night. By the light of many big horns,
the natives were to dance their native dances and play odd games and sing native songs.

Everybody was tired out now,
though, so they climbed into the airplane and flew back to Dr. Cheer's house to sleep and wait for the big party the next night.

Copyright, 1919.

"My dear child, what are you talking about?" asked Ladydear.

"Well, you see," said Jane, "Jack
and I always have wanted somebody
to play with back home in Make Believe Town, and the little brown girl
who brought me into the woods has just lots of sisters and brothers, so I asked her mother if I couldn't have
one for my own."

"She said she couldn't spare one
today, but the little girl took me to the village to get me to go with her."

Hear of Son's Death

RURAL PLANNING BILL FAVORABLY ADVANCED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, May 20.—Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Devins were called to Beloit, Saturday morning, going with the hope of learning something regarding the death of their son, Charles, a young man who recently returned from across seas. Harold Powers—had met Charles at Camp McArthur and the two
had been together from that time until
the death of Mr. Devins. A brother of Mr. Powers was also with them
and for some reason they had not been separated. When they landed in England all three were detailed to go on the Military Service for about three months, or about the middle of May, one year ago, when they were called to go to France, and were at that time made members of Co. A, 150th machine gun battalion, sent to the front July 12. Here
they were in training for 15 days and
on the 28th of the same month they were ordered into the trenches. The fighting began at 3 o'clock in the morning and was fierce but at 11
o'clock the officers ordered them to retreat and all obeyed orders except Charlie and two of his comrades.

Mr. Powers turned and looked back
and saw them hesitating as though
determined to go ahead, and while he looked a shell exploded, and when it cleared away all three were lying in the ground. Powers and one other had Charlie still living, the other two dead. They carried Charlie about 10 or 12 rods, thinking to get him to first aid, but seeing that the end was near they laid him down and
a few minutes later he passed away
without regaining consciousness.

Mr. Powers was with him, helped to dig his grave, and helped to bury him in regulation order. No marks
were to be found on his body except one in the region of the heart. He was in active service but two hours
and lived but about 10 minutes after receiving the fatal wound. His body
lies buried in the American battle
cemetery, Seringes-et-Nesles, Aisne, France.

The largest real estate transaction
in this country was made a few days
ago when Charles Hawk sold his farm
of 144 acres to Mr. Pollard, Edgerton, for $180 per acre. Mr. Hawk gives possession about Oct. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bratzke welcomed a fine baby daughter into their home Sunday.

Mrs. Chapman was a visitor at the Toni Hagen home Sunday.

Mrs. Charles Hawk and daughters, Misses Lulu and Gladys, were present Monday.

Mrs. Beile Dohs spent Tuesday with Mrs. Elta Pepper.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Purdy were Monday afternoon callers at the home
of Mrs. Lillian Parmley.

Mrs. Will Timm was in Janesville,
Monday, also Mrs. E. A. Silverthorn.

FAIRFIELD

Fairfield, May 19.—Mrs. G. F. Cap-
pon, Durien, is visiting her sister, Mrs.
Clara Chamberlain, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Tarrant motored
to Milwaukee Saturday, returning on Sunday.

Mr. Inez Arnold, Durien, spent the week end at James Stewart's.

A new concert bridge is being put
in just north of this village.

Mr. Dayton Parker entertained her brother and family from Beloit, Sunday.

Arch Kniften has returned from Iowa, and is again at R. G. Tarrant's.

Rev. Baby, Delavan, will give lecture at the village church, Sunday evening. He will take for his subject,
"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Cyrstheia Ophelia Chesbro, eldest daughter of Edwin G. and Jane Ann Chesbro, was born in Ossage county,
New York, April 2, 1849. She passed away May 15, when a small child.
She moved with her parents to Wisconsin in 1867, where she was united in marriage with Charles Newlan and to this union was born one child, Hattie,
wife of Jerome Waterman. Her second marriage was with Eugene B.
Flowers, who passed away, April 2,
1917. She is survived by the daughter
Mrs. Hattie Waterman, a sister, Mrs.
Ella Sherrwood, Elgin, Ill., one brother
Edwin Chesbro, Durien, and other relatives.

Funeral services were held from the home of her brother at 2 o'clock, Sun-
day. Services were conducted by Rev.

ien cemetery.

Police Want More Money

Sheboygan, May 22.—An increase of 10 percent in salaries is demanded in agreements presented to the councils by departments. The men claim they are not being paid enough to provide for their families.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, May 22, 1879.—The Committee on Decoration from the Fair Ward will meet tomorrow at the residence of Mrs. W.
H. Heitch.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Heitch, Messrs.
W. D. Hastings, E. A. Doty, R. L. Colvin, J. B.
Crosby, Ed. McKay, C. Miner, G.
Guernsey, J. B. Whiting, A. Rogers,
Thomas Lappin, A. L. Royce, Delta
Collins, Misses Minnie Jones, Seppie
Harrison, Dolly Patton, Julia Wilson,
Misses L. B. Carpenter, W. D. Mc-Kee, and B. Peck.

There was a lively runaway along Milwaukee street today. Mr. Ottman
was just starting out of Loveloy's
and Blunt's lumber yards with a load
of fence posts, when one of the posts
slid onto one of the horses and the team started on the run. They were stopped on Milton avenue and no
damage to either posts or horses.

The public should not lose interest
in the arrangements being made for the proper observance of Decoration
day. A fund to help defray the expenses will be raised and all those wishing to contribute should notify either Dr. Henry Palmer, W. T. Van

Kirk, E. B. Helmstreet, Dr. O. P.
Robinson or G. A. Libbey.

At an early hour this morning Mr.
Boofus was riding along the highway near Beloit, when he suddenly became frightened and wheeled his horse, which then ran into a ditch.

Mr. Boofus struck in the ditch
with such force as to break one of his legs near the thigh. The horse continued on the run towards the city
until stopped by Mr. Chas. Lee. As

Mr. Baker is quite advanced in years
the injury is likely to prove quite serious.

Wed Two Soldiers, But "She Just Didn't Think"

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS)

Cleveland, Ohio, May 22.—Mrs.
Minnie Heitch, alleged soldier-love
prostitute, who is charged with having

collected the government allowance

as the dependent wife of both William

Heitch and Ralph Cottrell, told the

presiding municipal court judge here

when arraigned on a warrant for bigamy that she "just didn't think". She said she married Cottrell under the

erroneous impression that Heitch, her

true husband, had obtained a divorce

prior to her marriage to Cottrell. The first marriage was in 1915. The wedding in which Cottrell was a principal

was shortly before he entered the service. She will face the grand jury.

Says Trap Better Than Drives to Catch Wolves

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS)

Independence, Mo., May 22.—One
good trap will catch more wolves than all the wolf drivers that can be organized. C.
W. Turner, a farmer near here, makes
the claim and backs it up with the following:
He has caught nine wolves and sold their pelts after collecting the bounty, and also sold two to fur
dealers and eight foxes—all since the first of January.

BRINGING UP FATHER

FIRST INDUSTRIAL TRACK MEET WILL BE HELD AT GARY, JULY 4

(By KID BIFF)

When the first big industrial field and track meet of the American Industrial Athletic Association is held at Gary, Ind., July 4, a new and powerful factor in the country's springtime life will have made its initial appearance.

The meet will mark industry's first attempt at inter-city or national competition on a large scale—and when the nation's holiday rolls around, the eyes of the entire industrial world will be turned towards Gary to see just what interest will be taken in the big event.

Track athletes, some of them of country-wide fame, will gather at Gleason Field, owned by the Illinois Steel Company, July 4. They will represent the very best track athletes of more than a half million employees.

At least 50 large and small industrial concerns will have athletes entered in the A. I. A. meet and in some instances the contestants will have crossed the continent to participate.

Officials of national reputation will have the events in charge.

As ordered before, another practice will be held tomorrow night. Every man who expects to fight Traylor Sunday must be on deck.

Manager Murphy has made plans for a return game to be played at Edgerton, July 22, this after out-of-town games to both the summer holidays.

Traylor a Strong One

Old faithful Jim Scott will do slabwork for the Janes Sunday. Little Tommy Crouse has signed up to perform with the mask behind the platter. This combination proved an unbeatable one against the junior Fairies of Beloit two weeks ago, and local fans are betting their nickel that it will do the work again Sunday.

Edgerton is coming down with a good-sized flock of footers. Most of them will make the trip in cars.

Every local player reported at the meeting which was held in the Gazette office last evening. Plans in general were talked over and the season's schedule was also discussed. Murphy is lining up games with some fast semi-pro teams in Illinois as well as Wisconsin.

A visitor asking for a game was received this morning from a team of Marquette university men. Other games are under consideration and within a short time the schedule for the season can be announced.

Mrs. Ward Tells How U. S. Declaration Cheered Allies When Defeat Impended

By MRS. HUMPHREY WARD
On March 2, 1917, I found myself launching at Montreal, then the general headquarters of the British expeditionary force, with the staff of the intelligence department. After lunch I walked through the interesting old town with no idea of the department and our talk turned on the two subjects of supreme importance at that moment—America and Russia.

"When would America come in?" For that she would come in was clear. It was now a full month since diplomatic relations between Germany and the United States had been broken off, and about a week since President Wilson had asked Congress to arm American vessels in self-defense against the new submarine campaign announced by Germany in January.

"It can't be long," said my companion quietly. "Germany has gone too far to draw back. And the president will have the whole country with him. On the whole, I think he has every right to wait. It is from Americans themselves, of course, that one hears the strongest criticism of the president's 'patience'."

Germany was rushing on her fate. During the course of the month England and America watched the piling up of the German score as vessel after vessel was sunk. Then, on the first of April, came the loss of the Entrepot, American liner in the Azores, and the next day, one who owned our London newspapers to find that on April 2 President Wilson had asked congress for a declaration of war.

"America is in," wrote an officer at G. H. Q., "and the faces of everybody one sees shows a real bit of spring sunshine. People begin to say: 'Now we shall be home by Christmas.'"

RUSSIAN REVOLUTION BEGINS

But something else had happened in that fatal month of March. March 9 saw the strange uncertain opening of the Russian revolution, followed by a burst of sympathy and rejoicing throughout Europe. Only those intimately acquainted with the structure of Russian society felt the misgivings of those who see the fall of a house built on rotten foundations and have no certainty of that ground wherein to build its successor.

But the disappointment and exasperation of the allies at that moment as to all that had happened in Russia during the preceding months under the old regime was so great that the mere change bred hope and for a long time we hoped against hope, all the more because the entry of America, after the thrilling rapidity of her entry into the war, put the Russian cause into the shade—may indeed have dimmed the perceptions of the allies with regard to it. In 40 days from the declaration of war the United States had adopted conscription, which had taken us two years. General Pershing and a small force sailed for France within eighty days, and by the end of June, or within ninety days, America had adopted the blockade policy of Great Britain, and assented to the full use of that mighty weapon which was to have so vast an influence on the war.

ENGLAND ADMIRES WILSON

President Wilson's speech, when he came to congress for the declaration of war, revealed him and America—to England, then sorely brooding over "too proud to fight," in an aspect which revived in us all that was kingship and sympathy. Nay, we invited America a man capable of giving such a sufficient expression of all true nations in face of the German challenge.

I well remember a gathering in a London house in November, 1917, just after the first successful attack in the battle of Cambrai. It was a gathering in honor of General Bliss, and other American officers and high officials.

General Bliss was the center of it, and the rugged, most human, most lovable figure of Mr. Page was not away.

The battle of Cambrai was in progress, and English expectations, terribly depressed, at any rate among those who knew, by the reports which had been coming through the severe fighting in the effort during the preceding weeks, were again rising rapidly. Everybody was full of the success of the initial attack, of the tanks above all, and what they might mean for the future. At last St. Julian Bridge had achieved surprise; at last there had been open fighting; if by happy chance we took Cambrai what might not happen?

VICTORY SEEMS NEARER

At last of optimism can through us all. Victory and peace drew nearer. Yet in the background there were always those dim rumors of the appalling losses at Passchendaele, together with the smarting memory of Caporetto, and of the British divisions sent to Italy.

And in ten days more we knew that the German counter-attack had checked the German advance that Boulogne Wood was lost, that Cambrai was still inaccessible, and we retained only a portion of the ground gained by the dash and skill of the first days. The moral was as always—"more mud."

And we settled down again to a stubborn waiting for our new recruits then in the training camps and for the first appearance of the American battalions.

Meanwhile the news from Russia grew steadily worse; the Russian army had melted away under the Kerensky regulations, and the country was rapidly falling into chaos. General Litovsk was acutely realized for the German triumph that it was, and the heads of the army were already calculating with some precision the number of German divisions then on the eastern front which must inevitably be transferred to France for the spring offensive of the German army.

ENGLAND TURNS TO U. S.

It was natural that those really acquainted with the situation should turn feverishly toward America. Meanwhile one saw the president aided by a score of able and energetic men constantly at work removing obstacles in the path, setting up a war industries board, reorganizing the shipping board and the air service, and clearing the way for those food supplies from the great American and Canadian wheat fields, without which Europe could not endure, and which were constantly endangered by the pressure of the submarine attack.

Perhaps in all that anxious winter the phase of American help which touched us English folk most deeply was the voluntary rationing by which hundreds and thousands of American families all over the vast area of the states eagerly stinted themselves that they might send food overseas to Great Britain and the allies—sixty million bushels of wheat by January—nearly millions before the 15th of next month. We know that it has been done by personal sacrifice and we feel it in our hearts.

More ships on this side of the sea,

the anxiety for men grew steadily stronger. Who knew what the coming spring campaign would bring forth?

AMERICAN TROOPS ARRIVE

But with the March setback of last year, as we all know, everything changed. American troops began to rush over to the end of March, and 440,000 more came up to the end of June, more than half of them carried in British ships, a million by the end of July, nearly a million and a half before the armistice. Wonderful story!

Nobody, I think, can exaggerate the heartening and cheering effect of it upon the allies in France, especially upon the allies in Italy, painfully recovering from Caporetto. How well I remember the thrill of those days in London, the arrival of the weekly

landing of troops—70,000, 80,000 men

—and the occasional sight of the little, straight-limbed American boys marching through our streets.

The American intervention, and especially the marvelous speeding-up of American action from March to the end of the war, quite apart from the brilliant promise of America's first appearance in the field, had an effect upon Europe—Great Britain, France, Italy—akin to that which the American climate and atmosphere produced upon the visitor from the side of the Atlantic. I watched new life into everything and especially into the heart of France, the chief sufferer by three years of atrocious war.

DOUGHBOYS HEARTEN FRANCE

As weary and devastated France watched the American stream of eager and high-hearted youth flowing from Bordeaux eastward, column after column, regiments in fine physique, fearless in heart and full of a laughing and boundless confidence in America's power to help, and resolve to win, at last it seemed that the long horror of the war must be, indeed, coming to an end.

"Three thousand miles" said the French villager or townsmen to himself as he turned out to see them pass. "They have come 3,000 miles to beat the Boche. And America is the richest country in the world—and there are 100,000,000 of them!" Hope rose into flood, and with it fresh courage to endure.

Nor was the effect less marked on the British nation which had not known invasion or on the British army, for all its British spirit. The rapid growth of American strength in France from March onward, in response to the call of the allies, provided indeed a moral support to the two older armies, which was of incalculable value; and influenced the fighting qualities of both; while the knowledge of these mounting reserves enabled the allied commanders to take risks which otherwise could hardly have been faced.

I am quoting a British military authority of high rank.

MEXICO APATHETIC SAY MISSIONARIES

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

St. Louis, Mo., May 22.—Mexico is hopelessly religious and apathetic socially and Japan is curtailing the progress of Koreans because of her apathy towards foreign missionaries, according to the report of the committee on foreign missions submitted to the 1919 annual assembly of the Presbyterian church in U. S. A. today.

Mexico needs most of all men of character in her political life," declared the report. "The country's stringent laws regarding religion make it virtually impossible for missionaries to make any progress and owing to the poverty there social conditions are appalling."

Missionaries have great influence with the Koreans but the Japanese are unwilling to have foreigners exert it over their subjects, the report recited. The question of sex equality in church affairs was brought before the assembly. The committee was split on the question, the majority report favoring the plan of permitting women to become ministers and elders.

Action on the report is expected to be taken late today.

BAPTISTS TO RAISE STANDARD OF PASTORS

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Denver, Colo., May 22.—Raising the standard of Baptist ministers so that none but well qualified men in education, leadership and "backbone" should occupy pulpits of the denomination is among the recommendations in the report of the committee on standardization of the ministry, which was to be presented to the Northern Baptist convention today.

The report of the laymen's survey committee, which outlined a huge financial campaign and world evangelism program for the next five years, also was to be discussed today.
